JAPAN PREPARES TO DELIVER THE NEXT BLOW ON LAND, HAVING CLEARED THE SEA SHE IS HURRYING TROOPS TO COREA

KILLINGS SHOW THAT GAMBLING IS GENERAL

Grandjury Commences Investigation to Fix Responsibility for Alleged Protection of Games Where Little and Jim Ray Lost Their Lives.

CORONER'S JURY DECLARES NEGRO'S SLAYER BLAMELESS

Chief Kiely Says That Police Have Standing Orders to Suppress Gambling, and While They Knew of Ray Resort Had Frequently Raided It.

GAMBLING—Gambling should be suppressed. Insofar as this grandjury and the prosecuting officers' attempts to curb this lawlessness have been made, such efforts have been of no avail, due mainly to the failure of the proper officials to render competent service to the prosecuting officials and the jury.—Extract from December grandjury's report.

The killing of Joseph Little, known to the police as a gambler, Sunday morning, and of Jim Ray, known also a gambler, Tuesday morning, have brought out the fact that gambling is again general in St. Louis.

The developments of the Little killing showed that he either was or had been conducting a gambling place at Twenty-Ninth and Olive streets, and his friends say he had "protection."

The killing of Ray occurred as a result of a gambling house war, and in a place which is well known to the police as a gambling house.

Men who profess to know say there are many other places in St. Louis where gambling is openly done, and that if the police do not know it their ignorance is strange.

The inquest over Ray was held Wednesday morning, and the decision of the coroner, after much evidence, had shown that he was noted as a gambler and was the aggressor in the fight which caused his death, a verdict of justifiable homicide was returned.

It was declared that he was killed by Thomas Watkins, but that Watkins acted in self-defense, and should not be held as blameworthy for the killing.

Grandjury Takes Up Gambling Case.

The February grandjury Wednesday morning began an investigation into gambling.

The investigation will be thorough, said Circuit Attorney Folk. There are many reports of gambling being conducted in the city. We want to know if there is any gambling going on, and, if so, why it is permitted.

The grandjury will investigate the reports of gambling in the saloon and hotel known as the Bachelor, the proprietor of which was killed Sunday morning, and also of the room where the negro, Jim Ray, was killed.

Mr. Folk said the grandjury has at various times summoned the "gambling squad" of detectives to inquire about games reported running at specific places, but the answer has always been that the detectives were unable to find the games.

Kiely Refers to General Orders.

Chief Kiely was asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter why the police did not suppress all the gambling houses he said his captains and his gambling squad had general orders to do so.

He admitted that Jim Ray's place had been visited several times showed that the police knew of its existence.

HURLED INTO PAINT VAT

Revolving Shaft Caught Workman's Clothes and Broke Half a Dozen Bones.

While repairing a vat at the Hammer Paint Co., on St. Clair Avenue, East St. Louis, employee of the company, J. M. Steinweber, of 220 Laclede, St. Louis, was hurled 20 feet into a vat of red paint by a revolving shaft, which caught in his clothing.

His limbs immediately removed to his home, and there is little probability that he will recover. Several ribs and both arms and legs are broken.

RUSSIA HAS LOST NINE SHIPS IN ONE DAY

St. Petersburg Papers Print Reports of Japanese Defeats at Port Arthur, but Elsewhere This News Is Discredited.

CHEE FOO, Feb. 10.—Japan's next blow will be delivered on land, possibly at Port Arthur.

With surprising celerity, she has practically cleared the Yellow Sea of Russia's fleet, and is hurrying troop-laden transports to Corea. Japan has landed fully 10,000 men at Chemulpo and contiguous ports. She has sent one division to Seoul.

It is probable that she has also landed a large force within two days' march of Port Arthur.

Her celerity and adroitness is surprising. Within a few days she will be in a position to deliver a blow that may be crushing, as it is now apparent that Russia is unprepared to meet such an active foe.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—A special dispatch from Tokio, dated today, says it is reported that three transports of the Russian volunteer fleet, conveying about 2000 troops, have been captured by the Japanese off the Corean coast.

In the first three days of the war Russia has lost nine ships of war, three transport steamers, about 100 men killed and wounded and 2000 taken prisoners.

Reports are printed at St. Petersburg that Chemulpo has been occupied by the Russians, that the Port Arthur battle was a Russian victory. These reports receive no credence here.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister here, has received official confirmation from Tokio of the destruction at Chemulpo of the Russian first-class cruiser Varang, and the third-class cruiser Korietz in a battle with a Japanese squadron. The Korietz, the dispatches say, was sunk and the Varang hopelessly disabled.

According to the report the two Russian ships fought well, but were outnumbered. Their object was to get away.

The Japanese ships suffered some damage. The engagement lasted four hours and was fought in the outer harbor of Chemulpo.

The cruiser Varang was the first American built ship of the Russian navy. On her trial in 1900, she was the fastest war vessel afloat, having maintained an average speed of 23.7 knots for more than seven hours. She was built by the Cramps, and was up-to-date in all respects. She carried 37 guns and a crew of 500 men.

2 P. M.—Official dispatches from Tokio, received by Baron Hayashi, say that the Japanese admiral, on arriving with his squadron at Chemulpo, sent a message to the two Russian cruisers, giving them a time limit in which to leave.

Shortly afterwards the Russians came out, stripped for battle, and attacked a Japanese torpedo boat, which replied with a torpedo ineffectively.

The Japanese squadron returned the fire and the battle was on. After a desperate resistance, although outnumbered, the Russian ships ran back to the harbor.

After a hot fire, the Korietz sank at the entrance of the harbor.

It is not yet known whether the sinking was due to the Japanese fire or to the Russian's own action, but it is believed to be due to the former. There were no casualties among the Japanese, and their vessels sustained no damage.

The armament of the Korietz consisted of two 8-inch breechloaders, one 6-inch breechloader, four 4.7-inch quick-fires, two 6-pounder quick-fires, four 1-pound revolving cannon and two torpedo tubes.

Chemulpo is the seaport of Seoul, the Corean capital. It is 300 miles from Port Arthur and about the same distance from the base of Japanese naval operations at Edo, Japan.

Hard to Restore

Judge Adams, sitting on the bench of the United States District Court, tempestuously dismissed the case of Herman Straat, aged 23, a substitute clerk in the mailing department of the post office, was brought before him for trial. The young man had been indicted Tuesday afternoon on the charge of rifling two letters, from one of which he took $50.

The reputation of the young man's family, his evident refinement and good breeding and his four years of honorable service in the navy appealed to the court.

Out at the family home, 125 North Euclid avenue, the boy's widowed mother was too ill to come to the court, but his sister, a beautiful young woman, came with her several friends, all of excellent family connections.

Judge Adams called the sister to speak for the young man. She said he had always been a good son and brother, had studied hard and had secured his place in the post office. There her voice broke. She said that he had probably been led astray, that he was a good boy and had been a good son.

The judge called the prisoner to the stand and asked him to speak. He told his story, and then told over his naval service. Then he told how he had fallen among bad associates.

At this point District Attorney Dyer recurred to the fact that the government entered a nolle prosequi in the felony charge.

"I want to say you," said Judge Adams, "are a good man, and I want to give you a chance to be a man."

He went on to tell Straat that he must give up his bad company, secure employment, get into his sister's home, and then go to evenings at home, and report to him on the first Monday in May.

The young man was released on $1000 bond on his own recognizance.

Mrs. Straat, the prisoner's sister, came from grief and was taken to an adjoining room, where friends restored her.

BRITISH PASSENGER SHIP RAN INTO THE THICK OF THE BATTLE.

CHIPOO, Feb. 10.—The British steamer Columbia, which arrived here today from Port Arthur bringing news of the attack by the Japanese fleet upon the Russian fleet, reports that the Columbia had a narrow escape from injury. Her passengers and crew were very much excited in regard to her dangerous position. While going out of the roads at Port Arthur the Russian cruiser Novik shot at the Columbia and the Japanese fleet's which passed over the Novik struck around the Columbia. Her flag was cut into shreds, and one shell fell on her deck. The faces of those who were on deck were blackened with powder smoke.

OPERATIONS A FAD.

Public Gradually Awakens to the Fact. The latest fad in operations has been the appendicitis fad; before that the fad for rectal operations (piles, etc.) held sway. Hundreds of patients were frightened and hurried into hospitals, operated upon and robbed of their last dollar, when the trouble was a simple case of hemorrhoids or piles only, easily cured at home with a simple remedy, costing but fifty cents a box.

I procured one fifty-cent box of Pyramid Pile Cure of my druggist, with the intention of buying a larger box later, but was happily surprised when I found that I was cured, and still have six 'pyramids' left out of the first and only box. I have not had the least sign of piles since I used this one box, which cost me but two dollars, previous to using Pyramid Pile Cure. I had the worst kind of bleeding and protruding piles for over thirty-one years, and no one knows, except those who have had the piles, the pain and misery I suffered.

"I am a poor man, but have often said I would give a fortune, if I had it, to be cured of the piles, and now I have been cured for fifty cents. I should be very ungrateful if I did not thank you and give you every privilege to use my name and this letter, when I know there are so many who suffer as I did." J. A. STORY OF THE FIRST BATTLE OF THE WAR workable Russian fleet and the forts responded vigorously, and a general battle was waged.

Three Russian men-of-war were seriously damaged. The Czarevitch, the largest and heaviest armored battleship in the squadron; the battleship Poltava, and the protected cruiser Boyarin, and, less seriously, the battleship Ritsivan, the cruisers Pallada, Askold and Novik, and the commerce destroyer Diana.

The Czarevitch, the Poltava and the Boyarin were struck by torpedoes during the night attack. To save them, they were grounded at the entrance to the harbor. As they lie now, they prevent battleships and cruisers from entering to coal and gunboats from leaving the harbor.

The Russians acknowledged a loss in the second engagement of nine men killed and two officers and 51 men wounded in the fleet, and one man killed and three wounded in the shore batteries.

After the battle the Japanese fleet steamed away, having suffered no damage apparently.

Fourteen battleships and cruisers were in the Russian fleet.

The Japanese fleet was commanded by Vice Admiral Toyo and numbered 15 vessels.

RUSSIANS ASTOUNDED BY JAPS BOLDNESS.

The boldness of the Japanese attack is scarcely less astounding than was the acknowledged unpreparedness of the Russians. They were not expecting the Japanese for several days at least.

Where the Japanese came from is not known here.

They seemed to have just risen out of the sea.

There was a bunch of the little torpedo throwers that stole in on the Russians under the very guns of the land batteries.

The instant after the explosion the whole scene was illuminated by the brilliant searchlights of the Russian warships, their decks swarming with men.

The Russian guns instantly opened toward the sea and swept the water with a rain of steel. So far as it is known, it did no harm, for the swooping searchlights could not discover the torpedo boats, which apparently had let fly their torpedoes and kept swiftly on their course.

The firing lasted only for a short time, then all was quiet for a while, although the searchlights illuminated the water for an hour.

Made bolder by their first success, the Japanese torpedo boats again approached an enemy whom they had aroused and who was watching for them.

Torpedoes were let fly and they again hit the mark.

As before the Russian searchlights sought their evasive and deadly enemy; again tremendous broadsides tore the waters.

The Japanese did not answer with a shot.

At 2 o'clock in the morning the Czarevitch and the Poltava steamed slowly in from the outer roads and were beached across the entrance to the harbor. They were soon followed by the battleship Retziv, which was badly listed and whose steering apparatus seemed to be useless. She was beached at the harbor's entrance, too. None of the vessels was damaged above the water line apparently.

When daylight approached the Russians sent out a fast cruiser to watch for the Japanese fleet. Then came the really tantalizing work of the Japanese. Four of their fast protected cruisers lay off the harbor and circled in a radius of six miles. No torpedo boats were seen, they probably having steamed away after the night attack.

Four taunting Japanese cruisers drew a fierce fire from the Russian fleet and batteries, but for a while the Russians, crippled by the loss of three vessels, seemed disinclined to accept the challenge to a general action.

The four cruisers then rejoined the two divisions of the fleet which, at 11 o'clock, approached and, at a range of three miles, opened fire on the Russian ships and forts, which replied vigorously.

The Russian fire fell short. That from the Japanese fleet was much

RUSSIAN ARMY MOVES ON TO MEET JAPANESE

Third Brigade of Artillery, With Three Infantry Regiments, Starts For Yalu River—the Manchurian Railway is Heavily Guarded.

Special Cable to the New York World, Post-Dispatch and London Morning Post. (Copyright, 1904, by the Press Publishing Co.)

PORTE ARTHUR, Manchuria, Feb. 10.—The Russian forward movement has commenced.

Gen. Krasilnikov leaves Liayang today for the Yalu river at the head of the Third Brigade of artillery, consisting of 24 guns, with three regiments of infantry.

The Third, Fourth and Fifth brigades are entrenched along the railroad for a distance of 40 miles from Hailchong, and three batteries of the Fifth brigade are at Kin Chou.

Altogether 36 east Siberian regiments are in Manchuria, and four have been moved to Vladivostok since Thursday.

The guards along the Manchurian railway have been increased, and the line is under the constant surveillance of the Russian troops.

The greatest activity prevails here, and ammunition is being served out lavishly, at an average of 10 cartridges for each man.

New recruits are being enrolled with feverish haste, drilling being dispensed with in favor of incessant target practice.

more effective, for the Pallada and the Novik, the Askold and the Diana were hit and damaged.

After engaging for an hour, the Japanese fleet slowly withdrew in a perfect order as if it were on review.

It steamed to the northwest toward Dainy (Taliwan), from which direction they arrived. But they quickly changed their course for some purpose. The steamer Foo Chow, from Dainy, which arrived here later, passed through the Japanese fleet.

JAPANESE DECIDED TO ALLOW NO DELAY.

Vice-Admiral Togo determined to attack as soon as he learned of the diplomatic rupture between the nations. This information was taken to him by a destroyer dispatched from Tshushima early on Sunday. Besides scouting cruisers had informed him of the Russian fleet's precarious situation outside Port Arthur.

The consternation of the Russians explains why the Japanese torpedo boats escaped so easily.

During their attack, Admiral Togo's fleet kept out of sight of the Russian searchlights. The night was fine. Only after the battle did the Russians largely increase their guard outside the harbor.

The Japanese proved their good gunnery, although the firing on both sides was slow. The Japanese formation was the better by far.

The Novik fought best on the Russian side.

A naval officer, who was recently at Port Arthur, says the Russians were not prepared for the attack on their ships and had insufficient amount of steam up. Three torpedo boats patrolled the Straits of Pechili continuously, but apparently the Japanese torpedo boats were not noticed until after the first torpedo was fired.

The Russian war vessels believed to be hopelessly ice-bound at Vladivostok are the armored cruisers Rurik, Rossia, Gromoboy and the Bogatyr, a screw corvette built in 1860.

It is not thought here that the Japanese fleet will blockade Port Arthur.

The fleet approached and attacked, probably accomplishing its purpose of screening the landing of one army corps at Fusan, Corea, which will proceed to Seoul, and of two army corps at Pen-Yang, Corea, which will be pushed forward to the Manchurian frontier.

The Japanese fleet consisted of four fast cruisers, the Chitoese, Kasagi, Tagafago and Yoshino, which circled outside, drawing the fire of the Russians. They then joined the main fleet and all went in to attack the armored cruisers. In the Japanese fleet, which consisted of two divisions, were the Mikasa, the flagship; the first class battleships Asahi, Fuji, Inashima, Shikashi Ma, Hatusse and the dispatch boat Tatsuma. The second division of the fleet, under command of Admiral Damimura on the flagship Idzumo, consisted of the armored cruisers Yukama, Asama and Iwats.

TIENTSIN, Feb. 10.—The Japanese have everywhere accomplished the landing of forces in Corea without difficulty and without opposition.

On Sunday last, a strong Japanese torpedo division, escorted by cruisers and transports, suddenly arrived off Chemulpo, Corea.

The landing of the Japanese troops proceeded rapidly. Eight thousand men were quickly ashore, others following, and the march on Seoul, the capital, was begun.

The capital will be occupied in force, besides Fusan and Chemulpo.

Japanese troops have been landed at all the chief ports in southern and western Corea. One division of Japanese guards now holds Fusan and Chemulpo, where it was disembarked after those that took road to the capital.

HAY'S NOTE DOES NOT SUIT FRANCE

French Diplomats Think the Powers Cannot Agree on a Plan to "Protect the Integrity of China," Because of the Status of Manchuria.

PARIS, Feb. 10.—The overtures of the United States government to the powers for preserving the neutrality and integrity of China, and for the maintenance of the neutrality of Manchuria, have been rejected by the French, who are of the opinion that the status of Manchuria is not yet clear.

United States Ambassador Porter conferred with Foreign Minister Delcasse yesterday. The results have not been made public, but the general situation is as follows:

It does not appear probable that an accord of the powers can be reached at the present time, owing to differences of views and the contrasting attention given to the active events of the war. It is practically certain that France will not take any action which could possibly be construed as embarrassing to Russia or as seeking to coerce her concerning the integrity of China. The French authorities appear quite willing and even anxious to have China declare her neutrality. They desire to have the least possible interruption in international shipping at far eastern ports and also will seek individually and collectively to confine the area of hostilities so as to reduce the chance of a general spread of the conflict.

But, relative to the integrity of China, it is not likely that any step will be taken, if the term "China" is intended to include Manchuria.

It is held that this is consistent with the present French attitude concerning the integrity of China, which was construed to be entirely distinct from the provinces of the Chinese empire, including Manchuria, Tibet and Mongolia.

However, the foregoing is only the general tendency, the negotiations being still open, with the prospect of their rather lengthy continuance.

THE UNITED STATES GOING TO UNUSUAL LENGTHS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Official announcements at the White House make it plain that the administration is dabbling in the far eastern squabble to unexpected lengths.

Under order from Minister Hay, Minister Conger has urged the Emperor to remain in Peking, and has told him that the United States will leave troops to prevent the war or from extending further into China than the Manchurian border.

John Hay, Foreign Minister, holds the key to the situation so far as the peace powers are concerned. She believes that if the Emperor would call all of China and is inclined to do so, the Chinese provinces, Mr. Hay is striving to quiet her fears.

If she should leave Peking there could be immediate difficulties which could find or make an excuse for sending an army across the Manchurian border to restore order and, incidentally, seize territory.

The Chinese minister has informed Mr. Hay that the entrance of a Russian or Japanese force into China would be a signal for an anti-foreign uprising that would be more widespread and far more serious than the boxer trouble. He said the Chinese government recognized that it

NO MAN OR WOMAN CAN HAVE DYSPEPSIA

And Still Be Agreeable, Attractive and Popular—A Certain Cure in Reach of All.

There is nothing that will put you to the front so rapidly in the business or social world as a cheerful disposition and a pleasant appearance. Other things being equal people will go out of their way to give the fellow a lift who always wears a cheerful countenance. The man or woman with a cranky disposition and a sour face will always meet with an indifferent if not a chilly reception. The commercial traveler, who is the recognized business promoter, appreciates better than any other the value of this rule and governs his actions accordingly.

Dyspepsia destroys all the agreeable qualities that enter into a man or woman's make-up. It is almost a human impossibility for anyone with a severe case of dyspepsia to look pleasant. The continual, miserable, cast-down feeling is bound to make itself seen in the appearance and conversation.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the sufferer's certain cure. They are so recognized all over the world. The cures they have brought about and the happiness they have caused and the suffering they have relieved have made their name a household word in all the English-speaking world.

The reason that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a certain cure is that they are a natural cure. There is nothing to prevent them curing. They contain the essential ingredients of the natural fluids of the stomach and simply do the identical work of the stomach, relieving the weakened organ and permitting it to rest and recuperate. Could anything be more simple or natural? They are bound to cure. They cannot help themselves. It is just like putting a new stomach into a man—if that were possible—and letting the old one go off on a vacation. Rest is what it needs. Nature will do her own work of restoration, never fear.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a box. All druggists means all druggists. They have become so necessary to the people that the druggist simply has to keep them anyway. There are no other remedies that he can make much money on if he could sell them, but he can't. He will not take chances on losing his customers by not always having on hand a supply of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

NEIGHBORS ATTACK MIDNIGHT MUSICIAN

Man Who Played Accordion When Others Sought Sleep Beaten and Left for Dead.

GRIEVANCE IS AN OLD ONE

Seemingly Lifeless Form Responds to Policeman's Shaking, and Victim Identifies Assailants.

Paul Horvac of 1701 Carroll street, who is believed to be dying at the City Hospital, died at 10:30 a.m. yesterday morning at 1818 Twelfth street, and Paul Giske of 1818 South Eleventh street, as the two men who assaulted him at daylight Wednesday morning at the corner of Lafayette avenue and Dolman street. The trouble resulted from Horvac's playing the accordion at night.

The accordion first figured in the affairs of the neighborhood last summer, when nights were warm and the windows were open.

Horvac, according to his neighbors, sleeps but a few hours each night, while his fellow-workers require the region eight hours. After the other man had gone to bed, Horvac would sit in his room and play popular airs, to the great annoyance of his neighbors.

The trouble started then, resulted in a fight four months ago, when Horvac and Giske beat each other badly, but quit with horses.

Wednesday morning Horvac, with three companions, was on his way to work, when he met Simonic and Giske and the battle was on.

Horvac's companions ran, and he was found by a policeman, who thought him dead.

At the City Hospital he recovered consciousness and was able to identify Simonic and Giske, but said that he could not be sure he could fight them but little, as he was knocked down by a blow from a club at the first attack. His skull was fractured and his head and body were bruised, as though he was kicked and beaten after being knocked down.

Simonic is 20 years old and Giske 19.

FINAL TRIAL FOR FREE TEXTBOOKS

System Has Nearly Doubled Cost, and Its Abolition Is Discussed by School Board.

NEW METHOD FOR SUPPLIES

Changes and Promotions Among the Teachers—Resignation of Director Dula Accepted.

The abolition of the free textbook system in the public schools of St. Louis is under consideration of the school authorities. Immediate changes will be made in the method of issuing supplies, and upon the effect of these changes depends the retention of the system.

A report was submitted by the committee on supplies supplied at the monthly meeting of the Board of Education Tuesday evening, giving comparative figures for the last six months of 1903, with the figures in operation, and for the corresponding period of 1902, when the pupils were buying their books from the board.

According to this report, books costing $45,450.00 were issued during the 1903 period, while the total purchase by pupils in the 1902 period was $25,000.00, a difference of $22,450.00. In the matter of stationery supplies, which are also issued free, the figure for 1903 was $25,968.33, for the 1902 period, and only $24,416.00, a difference of $1,552.33, a difference of $10,382.60.

The committee recommends that the superintendent make all necessary arrangements for supplies before they are issued by the commissioner of supplies.

The resignation of R. C. Dula from the board of education, his removal to New York was accepted with expressions of regret.

Promotions of teachers were announced by the Young Ladies' Sodality of St. Patrick's Church of East St. Louis, who have undertaken the work of supplying books for the large number of poor children who are attending St. Patrick's parochial school.

One of the young ladies said to the Post-Dispatch: "We do not believe in the old system, but we make ill the young men's stomachs. They buy billiard and pool tables."

The movement is headed by Miss Harriet Walsh of 322 Collantine avenue, East St. Louis, who was elected prefect at the last meeting of the sodality. A number of euchre parties have been planned to raise money to assist the poor children.

WOMAN RECOVERS DRESS FROM THIEF

Pursuit Prevents Successful Outcome of Burglary, but Robber Makes His "Getaway."

Mrs. William Beiser at Alton routed a daylight robber from the family home at 815 Sixth street Tuesday afternoon.

The man entered the front door of the house and removed Mrs. Beiser's new silk skirt and waist from a chair in the parlor.

Mrs. Beiser went into the parlor in time to see the thief leaving. A dash across the room and she caught the tail of the skirt.

The thief kept running with the silk waist under his arm. Mrs. Beiser also kept running and went down the street yelling for help.

Her husband, Mr. Beiser, and their son, John, followed, and the thief dropped the waist after two blocks.

Mr. Beiser made his "get away."

SPRINTING COUPLE WEDDED QUICKLY

Pair From Ashley Walk a Mile and Are Made One, All in 25 Minutes.

Otto Meissner and Miss Ida Stolzenreider, both of Ashley, Ill., broke the Waterloo, Ill., record for quick marriage Tuesday afternoon.

They were in Waterloo just 25 minutes. The railroad station is half a mile from the courthouse, and they went both ways on foot.

The issuing of the marriage license required two minutes, and County Judge Bremer's ceremony three minutes.

Not until the were seated at the altar did the couple even begin to explain to an excited crowd, which followed them, that their hasty was due only to a desire that the bride should be in time for their wedding journey. The bride's mother accompanied them.

FEARS DELAY IN MARRIAGE

Ceremony Was Set for May 1, but
Loss of Money May Upset
His Plans.

J. W. Tippett of 1403 Olive street reported to the police at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning that he had been robbed of $362 and a gold watch half an hour before by two men at the southeast corner of Sixteenth and Market streets.

Tippett said he was on his way to Union Station, walking from his room to board a train which should take him to Olin, Ill. The money, all but $4 in bills, was in a wallet in his right hip pocket.

He was walking with his head down when two men stepped from the shadow of a factory at the corner. One of the men asked him for a match, stopping directly in front of him and the other stepped behind him.

Before Tippett could reply the man in front thrust two revolvers into his face and the other man seized him around the waist. The thief then overcast aside, drew the wallet from his pocket, whirled him around, jerked at his watch chain with one hand and cut the watch and then cut the watch and ran south on Sixteenth street.

The man with the revolvers backed away three or four feet, still pointing his gun. Tippett said, "If you make a sound I'll shoot you." He turned and ran after his partner.

A few feet away, Tippett turned to face Tippett, who was revolvers backed away three or four feet, still pointing his gun.

Tippett said he had been on his way to the Fair when he was stopped by the thief.

The thief, who was wearing a dark suit, was fully six feet tall, muscular and about 160 pounds, wore a cap and dove and the collar turned up. The other man was smaller, being about 5 feet 8 inches tall, was about 150 pounds, had a dark suit, a black slouch hat and a dark coat without an overcoat.

Tippett is employed at the World's Fair and fears the robbery will compel him to postpone his marriage to a young lady living near Ferguson. He says this marriage was set for May 1.

MINNESOTA BOARD OF PARDONS

Declines to Remove Restrictions from

Terms of His Release.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 10.—Cole Younger, now out of the Minnesota penitentiary, wants all the restrictions of his pardon removed.

Congressman J. Adam Bede, who recently made his maiden speech in Congress, presented the case today to the board of pardons, which absolutely refused to grant the request.

"I met Cole Younger while he was sojourning in Washington," said the congressman, "and he requested me to ask the board of pardons to remove the restrictions in order that he could make some contracts with St. Louis parties. He assured me that he was not going into the show business."

Cardinals Choose Training Place

ATHLETICS

CARDINALS WILL TRAIN AT HOUSTON

Unofficial Announcement of Completion of Spring Arrangements

Names South Texas City.

The Cardinals will train at Houston, Tex. This first positive statement of the fact was made today by Clarence D. Boyd, who closed arrangements for local railroad company with Secretary Muckenfuss of the Cardinals.

Secretary Muckenfuss stated that Houston would probably be the place agreed upon, but that he was not at liberty to give out any information on the point.

Houston is in the extreme south of eastern Texas, and the climate especially adapted to training at this time of year.

The Browns will leave for the South March 8. The Browns have already decided to come to Corcoran, Tex. This place was given a black eye in a statement by Outfielder Huelman, who once spent two days in that city.

Huelman's knock reached the eyes of Manager Roberts of the Corsicana team. What Roberts didn't do to Huelman's statement is not worth recording. He advanced the argument that two days in the sun is an adequate period of time in the climate of any place.

Assistant Secretary Morris of the Cardinals said that the management was satisfied that Corcoran was satisfactory as a training place and the plans of the club should not be disturbed.

Huelman, by the way, may not put in appearance with the Browns. He is said to be looking at the terms offered by Roberts.

An unnamed friend of Huelman's states that the big fellow will not come into the Browns' camp unless the Browns' offer is increased.

AMERICA WILL QUELL ANARCHY IN SANTO DOMINGO

Administration Instructs Admiral Wise to Use His Discretion in Measure to Protect the Interests of American Citizens.

PROTECTORATE WITH THE U. S. IN CONTROL MAY BE RESULT

Peaceable Element of Republic Wants It, as Does President Roosevelt, Who, However, Hesitates Because of the Panama Scandal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The United States will put an end to the lawless condition that prevails in Santo Domingo, even if it has to use force to do it.

The administration has instructed Admiral Wise to protect American property at all hazards, and to use his marines whenever he thinks this extreme necessary.

He has been ordered to use his discretion in dealing with each case, and that the government will support him in all measures.

This has been inevitable for several weeks. Americans in the black republic have been compelled to eat, to drink, and other business enterprises are being dictated by the rebels.

The rebels are on the Clyde line steamer New York by a government gunboat has aroused indignation in official circles here and it is safe to say the navy department thinks the rebels are responsible for such an outrage would be the seizure of the government gunboat by Rear-Admiral Wells, in which event it probably would be carried to Guantanamo.

The American residents have also been treated with great indignity.

Whether Admiral Wise will and is not known, but it may result in a protectorate.

This is desired by the peaceable element in the republic, and is also contemplated with enthusiasm by President Roosevelt.

The rebels kicked up in the shocking Panamanian scandal, however, may make the President doubtful about what course to pursue.

He has evidently determined to throw the issue into the tide and let that carry it wherever it will.

YOUNG MERCHANT FINDS GRIEF

Boy Decides Not to Be a Self-Made Man After Companions Attack Him.

Francis Steltz, aged 12, who ran away from his home at 2413 Elliot avenue to make his fortune, was arrested Wednesday morning and was very glad when the police told him he would have to return home.

Francis started out to get rich. He had 20 cents and concluded to be a street merchant, and lined up with other applicants for work, looking for a job. The other boys told him he was violating the rules of the profession in starting on a career with capital, and they told him to go home.

The man behind the gun will now give the peacemakers a rest.

Baltimore in rebuilding will have to put steel curtains between blocks.

It will not take the attorney general long to tell all that has been done against trusts.

Both parties have on the House floor knockers of the greatest Exposition—another evidence of imperfections in both.

ATTITUDE OF MISSOURI DEMOCRACY.

The most significant element in the poll on the governorship of Democrats who gathered in St. Louis for the Cockrell conference was the noncommittal element. Twenty-two Democrats would not indicate their choice; 9 spoke for Folk, 3 for Gant, 2 each for Reed and Crow, and 1 for Hawes. The majority would say nothing, and this probably represents the attitude of the majority of the people of Missouri at this time.

Very significant, however, was the result of the poll on the reaffirmation of the Kansas City platform in its entirety. Fourteen Democrats opposed reaffirmation, asserting that the party should take up live issues; only 9 were in favor of reaffirmation, and 15 were noncommittal. It is safe to assume that most of the noncommittal members of the conference are opposed to reaffirmation, as the reaffirmers as a rule do not hesitate to speak out.

But taking the actual vote as it stands, the result is an index of the sentiment of the rank and file of the Democratic party of Missouri. The Democrats gathered here were selected from all parts of the state by the leaders of the Cockrell presidential movement, the list being approved by Senator Cockrell himself. They were chosen as representative Democrats who have weight and influence in the organization and the counsels of the party. They are in touch with popular sentiment and undoubtedly voice the opinion of a large and influential element in the party.

The Missouri Democracy, with Bland as its standard bearer, led the movement in favor of the free silver plank in 1896. The Democrats of the state have been perhaps the most ardent supporters of Mr. Bryan to be found in any part of the country. When a majority of the representative Democrats of Missouri oppose the reaffirmation of the Bryan platform, Bryanism is discredited in the house of its friends. It affords strong grounds for the belief that Mr. Bryan will not be able to dictate the platform of the next Democratic national convention.

The first dash of the Japanese navy upon the unprepared and slow Russians brought successes which greatly increase the naval advantage of Japan in the Pacific, so necessary to their successful prosecution of the war. But while the destruction of the Japanese navy would be fatal to Japan, the defeat of the Russian navy merely changes the field of war to the mainland. The Russians are stubborn fighters and while their hopes of rapidly crushing Japan vanish with the defeat of their warships, they do not depend upon warships for ultimate victory. The Japanese have the greater tug of war on land yet to meet. But they have won the admiration of the world by their daring and dash.

SECOND LIEUTENANTS AND MARRIAGE.

The war department has issued a notice that second lieutenants would better not marry. A civilian who recently took the examination and won a commission thoughtlessly took a bride. He was immediately retired honorably, but peremptorily.

A second lieutenant is paid $1400 a year with quarters. The salary seems ample for a youngster and even for a youngster with a wife, but is in fact a meager stipend when expenses are considered.

An army officer is expected to be well groomed at all times. He must have uniforms enough so that if one is ruined by a heavy rain or is the least bit stained by the mud in a practice match it can be immediately replaced. An officer's clothes are the largest item of expense. Beside his social position requires considerable expenditure and at the end of the year he is lucky if not in debt.

Hence the intimation that second lieutenants should not marry. They must wait for a majority which is in middle life, and the income may be $2500. Even then a family will be expensive.

All of which suggests that if young army officers must give up the best there is in life in deference to such requirements, the sooner social conditions in the army are amended the better. Life need not be sacrificed to artificial obligations.

Russia encourages Americans to build plants in Russian territory; later the American workmen are discharged and Russians take their places; then the investor is so hampered that he "sells out in disgust." This is a sort of expansion of the high tariff idea, which is to get everything out of every other country without reciprocity in order to enrich ourselves.

MORE WORK FOR IDLE HANDS.

What the baby party and the monkey dinner were to the fagged-out Newports a season or two ago the cigar-collecting fad is to the more or less portion of high society in Paris at present. It was started by a "well-known nobleman," we are informed, and consists in making collections of cigars that have been purchased by celebrated men, and which are obtainable only through vallets, who presumably extract them from the pockets of their masters and dispose of them to the faddists for a consideration.

This nobleman has already collected three hundred cigars. Side by side, numbered and labeled, are displayed the favorite smokes of kings, emperors and other men who are not forced to work for a living. No. 6, for example, is the cigar of Gen. Mercier, of Dreyfus' fame; No. 27 is a mean-looking vegetable—the choice of Sir Wilfred Laurier; No. 33 once belonged to the King of Portugal, and No. 37, said to be worth $1, came from the box of Sir Thomas Lipton.

No arrangements have yet been made for the collection of cast-off socks, collar buttons, discarded hats, frayed neckties, unused vallets and used-up tobacco quids, but if the cigar collecting fad should become popular there seems to be no good reason why unemployed noblemen should not busy themselves with such innocent pleasures as these while our Newport idlers are devising something more bizarre than a monkeyfest for 1904.

Secretary Hay's note asking the powers of Europe to join the United States in an attempt to restrict hostilities and the hardships of war to the smallest possible area seems designed to save China from invasion and protect her neutrality from violation by either belligerent. If nothing more intended Mr. Hay's act is wise and humane. It is important to preserve order in China and prevent repetition of the disturbances of 1900, which were made the pretext of a joint invasion. If such disturbances occur during the war, and they are pretty sure to occur if either Russia or Japan excites the Chinese by carrying on hostilities on Chinese territory, there is no telling what the end will be. Mr. Hay's effort to restrict the area of the war is therefore an attempt to keep the peace in China and so in the world. If this is the purpose it will meet with general approval.

While many thousands of people have been thrown out of employment by the Baltimore disaster, the rebuilding of the burned district will demand an army of workmen.

As every Japanese warship is to be blown up rather than be permitted to fall into the hands of the Russians, the war may be extra tragic.

Carter Harrison may have an idea that three Harrison Presidents would not be too many for so large a country as the United States.

The Oklahomans consider Senator Beveridge's opposition to their statehood as odious as his Philippine speech was "hordid."

We should encourage Cuba in increasing her tariff. Is it not of such that our prosperity comes?

It seems that fire-proof buildings must be burnt down or blown up.

The expert gunner need not be out of employment in 1904.

POST-DISPATCH SNAP-SHOTS.

Perhaps we shall always speak of them as the "Philippines."

No stream on earth now looks so beautiful to Baltimoreans as Jones Falls.

The black paint on the battleships and the voice of the Missouri mule are unmistakable signs of war.

The theaters of Baltimore did not burn. They were among the safe places during the great conflagration.

Abraham Lincoln was two inches taller than George Washington, perhaps because he was born earlier in the month.

A cashier has disappeared with a roll of his employer's money shortly after getting married. Perhaps he tried to keep house at 1904 prices.

The millions who have read "Old Grimes" may care to know that today is the birthday of Albert G. Greene, the jurist and author who wrote it.

The Filipinos will feel comforted for all their woes when they hear the report that a grandson of Emerson is to be placed on the Philippine commission.

Perhaps it would be well just to watch Ziegler after the World's Fair opera. How can any man in the United States, having the stay, stay away from the greatest Exposition?

Brigham Young got mixed on "United States is," if he is quoted correctly. In one sentence he says "the United States seems" and in the next he speaks of them as "they" and farther on he says "them."

WILL IT BE THIS WAY?

The Yankees of the Orient
Were gamining for a Bear.
And simply would not be content
Till he was upon the scent
And had him cornered there.

"Aha!" the eager Yankee cried,
"This Bruin is my meat!
Though he may rave, with joy and pride
I'll put a bullet through his hide
And give the world a treat!"

So forth he salled, gun in hand,
To bring old Bruin down—
To lay him out upon the strand,
And with his gore to wet the sand,
And thereby win renown.

But when the Bear espied his foe
Advancing on him there,
He went cowering through the snow,
And seized and shook and laid him low,
And never turned a hair.

The Yankees of the Orient,
Astounded at his fate,
Breathed syllables of dire portent,
And muttered as he howard went:
"Till get him yet—just wait!"

Why Only Thirteen?

The Civic Improvement League of St. Louis has been formed to make certain places of historical interest in St. Louis with bronze tablets; but may we be permitted to ask why the committee has chosen to stop at thirteen?

Now, there are many of us who do not hesitate to take money on the 13th of the month, even though the day be Friday and $13 the amount offered, and who otherwise show our contempt for the "thirteen" superstition; yet we object to the erection of thirteen tablets only, as though there were only thirteen points of historical interest in St. Louis.

It is true that some importance attaches to the spot where Pierre Chouteau landed in 1763; where the Spanish took possession of the territory in 1768, when the transfer of the Louisiana Purchase was completed, as well as to other local points but we submit, as our lawyers say, that it is undesirable, unjust to St. Louis to say or even to intimate that there are only thirteen places in this great municipality worth pointing out to visitors.

What about the house in which Eugene Field was not born? What about the spot where Pontiac, the great chief, for whom we nearly named a building once, was not buried? What about the precious bit of earth on which William J. Stone stood when he organized the Health Society of Missouri? What about the sofa on which Councilman Upton defiantly permitted a $50,000 package of tobacco to lie all night? What about the spot on which Edward Butler stood when he did not bribe the House of Delegates to pass the city lighting bill?

What about these points of historical interest in St. Louis and a score of others, O gentlemen of the Civic Improvement League? Shall they be passed by with nary a bronze tablet?

Mr. Peewee Involuntarily Takes the Incubator Cure for That Sawed-Off Feeling

The Leap-Year Girls' Union—By Nixola Greeley-Smith

TWELVE society girls of Dubuque, Iowa, have united for the glorious purpose of catching husbands.

They have formed a leap-year club which has for its avowed object the winning by each member of the heart and hand of the man of her choice before Jan. 1 next under penalty of ostracism by the other members. The organization is the first indication that women have at last wakened to the gravity of the marriage situation and seek in union the strength that is now necessary to lure the elusive male into matrimony.

The formation of the leap-year club is the latest triumph of unionism, and it is to be hoped that by their efforts the universal feminine need of shorter courtships and longer marriages will be met and a fair schedule of post-matrimonial pocket money be agreed upon and enforced.

That the first step toward united action for or against men, according to the view

one has of married bliss—should be taken in the far West shows the extreme seriousness of the situation. In the East, where we have become used to the sad fact that the demand for husbands is greatly in excess of the supply, it has been our custom to regard the western woman as suffering from an embarrassment of riches, at least as far as the number of candidates for her hand were concerned.

But since the necessity for organization has been felt as far West as Dubuque, it is safe to assume that the husband family is well-nigh universal throughout the United States.

Of course, no American woman is so devoid of mental and physical charm as not to be able to land any husband at all. To get a man is easy. It is with the man that the difficulties lies.

The trouble is that the man is so very charming to other women as well as to you, and so very well aware of both their appreciation and yours, that he is naturally rather shy of committing himself.

He dallies to long with each tempting possibility. One should plunge into matrimony as one does into a cold bath—all at once and not gradually advance one timid foot, for fear of drawing back shivering from the shock.

What would happen if two women happened to want the same man? Why, the one that wanted him first would have to give him, providing she could produce a union card and prove that she was in good standing at the time she made up her mind that she had found the chosen of her soul.

But if every member were loyal to her oath and promptly boycotted a man the moment another member had marked him for her own and duly given formal notice to the general council, even this difficulty might be avoided. Besides, a boycott of this kind might help the man to make up his mind.

"Though I am now only a poor inventor," he stammered, "yet my airship is nearer perfection than ever. I—I have but two ideals in life—you and my airship. Will you marry me?"

She was silent.

"Do not answer too quickly," he begged. "Take time to think it over. I will come again for my answer. May 17?"

"Yes," she told him. "Come again—come in your airship."

That night two footpads were seriously attracted by a man who utterly ignored their request that he halt, but kept stonily on his way, his head down and his shoulders down.—Judge.

A DELICATE REFUSAL

"Miss Lotsotof," trembled the youth, as he parted from her at the door, "there is something I must say to you."

"Proceed," she urged him, with an encouraging smile.

TO CLINCH THE CURE.

"Saw," asked the customer with the warped face, "is salicylic acid good for rheumatism?"

"Some of our physicians recommend it," said the druggist.

"Give me a quarter's worth."

"Well, he means to get away."

A minute later he came back.

"Do you remember," he said, "you sold me some salicylic acid a few weeks ago, for rheumatism?"

"Yes. How did it work?"

"Well, it knocked out the rheumatism, but I've got to have something now to cure the salicylic acid."

SEEN AND UNSEEN

Many people think of Scott's Emulsion as merely a flesh builder, but its flesh building is only an outward sign of the new life-building process within the vital parts of the body.

It builds up the blood cells, the nerves and life tissues before the added flesh begins to appear.

Its unseen work is more important than the seen.

MIND READING AN INDOOR GAME.

A game that is mystifying and at the same time interesting to play, is mind reading. Any number of people can join in the fun, but the more there are the better. A ring is formed, all joining hands, and there must be two sitting next to each other who know the secret of the game. Let us call these two Alice and May. Alice, who is introduced as a "professional mind reader," leaves the room, and those remaining choose any word, a short one preferred.

The object of the game is for Alice, who is ignorant of the word, to return and guess it, and this may be done by a simple little trick so that it attracts no attention whatever. All are told to close their eyes, and think hard of the word chosen. Then Alice is called back and sits down in the circle, taking hold of her accomplice's hand, as well as that of her neighbor on the other side. Then very quietly May Alice's palm with her fingers, the tap signifying any word, the first tap meaning "a," the second for "b" and so on.

For instance, supposing the word was cat. May would tap Alice's hand three times, o being the third letter in the alphabet, and then pause for an instant, so that Alice might understand that was the first letter. Then one tap and a pause would mean "a," and since "i" is the 20th letter in the alphabet, Alice would easily understand twenty taps for "i." Thus any word may be spelled out, and it is always a long time before the uninitiated "catch on."

HOW TO TELL THE AGE OF THE GIRL IN RED

First Prize - - - Ten Dollars
Ten Prizes of Two Dollars Each.
Ten Prizes of One Dollar Each.To begin with, the Girl in Red is in her teens and there is no fraction in her age. She is 6 many integer years and so many integer months old. You have that information to start with.

Now then, to get the age, there will be twelve chapters in this story, and in each chapter three of the numbers, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 will be printed as numbers or figures—not spelled out. One of these numbers is to be selected each day—you must pick one of the three yourself—and when the story is completed add the four selected numbers in the first four chapters, subtract the selected number in the fifth, add the numbers in the sixth, seventh, and eighth chapters, subtract the number in the ninth, add the number in the tenth, multiply by the number in the eleventh and divide by the number in the twelfth. The quotient and remainder will be the Girl in Red's age in years and months. And remember she is under twenty. Read the story carefully, and you may find therein something that will give you a clue to her age. The number in the first chapter was 3.

Fill out this blank when the story is completed and send it to "Girl in Red" Editor Post-Dispatch, St. Louis, Mo. The story will end Friday, Feb. 12, and the prize winners will be announced Tuesday, Feb. 16.

that I—little, insignificant I—had turned the whole current of her fortune.

"Then I met Arthur Gray. The boy seemed me. I admired his strength, his brutal courage, his thick-headedness. I also admired still more his wealth. It occurred to me that I'd rather marry him than you. Especially as you were losing money rapidly and he was already rich beyond all dreams of avarice. Now, do you understand? I've been frank with you from the first. I like the boy. I love his fortune. I mean to marry him. To be strictly honest, I care a good deal more for you than I do for him, but not enough to make me willing to marry you while you're in disgrace. That is all. Good-bye, Simon."

Simon Farjeon took 1 step toward her. Gray read murder in his face and prepared to spring into the room. But the Girl in Red was well able to take care of herself. Statuesque, bold, dauntless, she faced the enraged man. A silver, mocking laugh between her pale lips; her dancing eyes flashed back gay defiance.

He stopped midway and started at her as one hypnotized. Then with a groan he wheeled and ran from the room.

In a little reception room opening out on the hallway he saw Judge Durding and Kathleen talking with a shrewd-faced, elderly man, who, from a certain withered resemblance to the Girl in Red, he knew must be Mr. Romaine.

Romaine wore a harassed, worn look,

and was humbly writing out a statement of some sort at Judge Durding's dictation.

The judge sat with his back to the door.

Romaine's profile was outlined against the threshold. Kathleen, who was facing the door, saw him at once. In response to a silent appeal in his eyes she rose at once and, slipping from the room, joined him in the room.

"My Knight!" she exclaimed merrily, going toward him. "Have you come to tell me you have won your quest and that you've come to claim my hand as your reward?"

Something in his face checked her.

"I have come," he said heavily, stupidly,

"to tell you I've won the 'quest,' and to say that I yield my claim to furnishings with a fortune and queen's throne in the 'very smartest set.'"

For only an instant did the girl change color. Then the old mocking silver laugh ran out.

"So you heard?" she said lightly. "Well, I played for high stakes, and if I've lost, why I've lost, and that's all there is to it. No one can say I'm not a good loser. Would you rather go the way you came or by the door?"

Through the open door Gray could see the polished stairway. Somewhere in the hall below he heard Kathleen Vernon's soft voice. Its cadences fell like balm on the nerves so sadly jarred by the Girl in Red's metallic tones.

"What was that?" queried Kathleen, suddenly.

"What? I heard nothing."

"It sounded like a blow followed by a smothered cry," she exclaimed.

"She sprang to meet him, but stopped when she saw the expression on his face."

Down the stairway he passed into the entrance hall of the rambling old country house.

STORY OF PREDICING CHAPTER
Arthur Gray, young millionaire, falls in love with a mysterious woman, Yolande Romaine, whom he calls "The Girl in Red." She is also loved by Simon Farjeon, whose house is a spy Jared Symes, a man who is under Farjeon's power, and who is trying to get Arthur Gray to do his bidding. The girl tells Gray that he may win her by guessing her age. A crew to this age will be found in the days, weeks, and months to come. The game is up, tell me for four purchases in St. Louis stores. To aid him in ascertaining the age of the purchases, Arthur has a list of questions to ask. Miss Vernon is a young girl whom Arthur had known in days of prosperity. She is the daughter of Simon Farjeon, and Kathleen was obliged to work for a living.

Arthur overhears a conversation between the girl and Farjeon.

CHAPTER X.

Two Voices.

PRAVING was not one of Arthur's accomplishments. Late, after remembering how he remained on the balcony and listened to the conversation in the room in front of him, he cursed himself for a cad. But at the time, so astounded was he by the first words he heard that he stood speechless. And remember she is under twenty. Read the story carefully, and you may find therein something that will give you a clue to her age. The number in the first chapter was 3.

"The game is up. I tell you, was the sentence that came to him as he was about to enter the room. Farjeon was speaking, shaking angrily, excitedly.

"The game is up. The Vernon girl and her lawyer are closest with your father downstairs. They've found out somehow that the will's crooked."

"That means a pretty striped suit for you for heaven's sake, don't try to be funny," stormed Farjeon. "Can't you see what a hole I'm in? Ever since the day that young cub of a Gray crossed my path things have gone wrong. That same week my mammoth deal went to smash, taking every cent of the money I'd got from old Vernon's estate. I've quered the books at the bank until it's only a question of days before the truth comes out. But what did I get by it? Nothing. It was only sending good money after bad. Gray's brought me all this rotten luck. Then, to cover my margins, I got Symes to fix up a couple of checks on Gray. It was no use. The luck was against me. Everything was swept away. Yet, just before I saw Gray, I seemed to be on the road to fortune again. Everything had prospered. In another month I'd have won you. For I know you well enough. Yolande, you'd never refused to marry a multimillionaire."

"You're quite right!" laughed the Girl in Red gaily, "and what's more, I'm going to marry one."

"Do you mean Gray? You shall never live to marry him."

"No, yes, I shall, my dear Simon. I shall live to marry him, to get control of his fortune and to be a queen in St. Louis' very smartest set. I made today the fourth of the purchases whose sum and quotient shall tell Gray my age. It will be easy for him to work out the sum. I sent him a note, too, telling him that if he would divide the months of my age by the years, carrying the quotient to two decimal places only, the quotient multiplied by one hundred will give the sum of the years and months of my age, and—"

"Yolande!" broke out Farjeon, wildly.

"You once promised to be my wife. You care more for me, I know, than you do for Gray. You don't love the young fool. How can you cast me off in my hour of need? Have you no heart?"

"Heart!" echoed Yolande, mockingly.

"No, I think not. I have a blood pumping muscle in the place where a heart is supposed to be. It sedges get tangled up in deranged sentiment. Listen, my dear Simon! It's time you and I understood one another: When you asked me three years ago—so much you knew you were unscrupulous, but I thought you were brilliant, I imagined you had a career ahead of you. If you had, you were willing to share it. If you had not, I had no idea of sharing poverty with you. I told you as much at the time. I also gave you the great idea of making little Symes forge old Vernon's will. That brought you enough to give you a grand start. But until I saw whether or not you were able to utilize that start I refused to link my fortunes with yours. Meantime, it was one of the greatest amusements of my life to go to the store where Vernon's daughter worked; to buy her and make her talk, and to realize that I—little, insignificant I—had turned the whole current of her fortune.

"Then I met Arthur Gray. The boy seemed me. I admired his strength, his brutal courage, his thick-headedness. I also admired still more his wealth. It occurred to me that I'd rather marry him than you. Especially as you were losing money rapidly and he was already rich beyond all dreams of avarice. Now, do you understand? Simon Farjeon took 1 step toward her.

Gray read murder in his face and prepared to spring into the room. But the Girl in Red was well able to take care of herself.

Statuesque, bold, dauntless, she faced the enraged man.
